

Maison Craft Unveils EcoWoven Wave Wallcovering at FIND – Design Asia 2025

Blending Thai craftsmanship, sustainable materials, and timeless design for global interiors.

Singapore, 11-13 September 2025

Maison Craft, a Thailand-based design studio dedicated to sustainable craftsmanship, will showcase its latest innovation. The EcoWoven Wave Wallcovering is at FIND Design Asia 2025 in Singapore.

It handcrafted from natural sedge, jute, and responsibly sourced timber, the art of material finishing redefines eco-conscious living by combining artisanal weaving traditions with modern modular design. Each panel celebrates the textures of nature while delivering functionality as a customizable interior feature. It is bringing light, shadow, and character to any space.

“We believe that design should not only serve beauty but also the planet,” said Mathinee, Founder of Maison Craft. “Our woven wall panels empower local artisans, reduce reliance on synthetic materials, and offer architects and designers a sustainable solution that enriches both living spaces and cultural heritage.”

The launch underscores three key commitments of Maison Craft:

- Sustainability : biodegradable natural fibers and timber, reducing environmental impact.
- Cultural Preservation : supporting rural Thai weaving communities through fair trade practices.
- Design Innovation : modular panels adaptable as wall features, partitions, or acoustic elements, tailored to luxury interiors, hotels, and eco-conscious projects.

Maison Craft's participation at FIND – Design Asia 2025 highlights a new era of collaboration between traditional crafts and forward-looking design, bridging Asia's artisan legacy with the global movement for greener, more meaningful living.
